Global MA in International Relations (GMA)

Program Description

The global master of arts (GMA) in international relations enables students to analyze the complexities and processes involved in world politics and international affairs while traveling the world. Students achieve this objective not only through coursework providing exposure to the key subfields of the discipline and relevant issues such as globalization, human rights, humanitarian action, and economic development, but also through professional seminars and experiences at five of Webster’s overseas sites.

Traveling in cohorts, students develop broad expertise in international relations while also earning a certificate in on of four specialized areas: Security Studies, International Development, Comparative and Regional Governance, or International Non-Governmental Organizations. This program is ideal for students seeking work with a governmental agency, an intergovernmental organization, a nongovernmental organization, or a multinational corporation. This program is also recommended to students planning to pursue a PhD or an academic career at another institution.

Global Degrees

Students enrolled in Webster Global degrees achieve greater comprehension of theoretical approaches to understanding global issues, not only through traditional course work but also through lived experience in different nations, interaction with local people, and through field visits. Hence, there are several fundamental experiences that distinguish the "Global degree" from a "non-global" degree.

- A Global degree cannot be completed at one Webster University campus alone.
- A Global degree includes study at several Webster University campuses in a minimum of three different countries.
- A Global degree allows students to engage directly in various cultures and develop a global perspective that might not otherwise be achieved.
- A Global degree requires a structured rotation of students among the Webster campuses with a predefined academic curriculum for each campus.
- A Global degree allows for the movement of a cohort of students between campuses while still achieving all of the requirements for graduation.
- A Global degree is designed so that the time spent in the local culture at each Webster campus complements the academic work in the student's particular area of study.

Global degree programs have a cohort of students. They are not available for single students moving among campuses. The cohort size will be determined by the academic department offering the Global degree. The integration of location-specific highlights that enhance academic understanding is crucial to a Global degree and should be organized as a part of the student's coursework, normally in professional seminars.

Locations

Students in the global international relations program typically visit five of the following countries:

- Accra, Ghana
- Athens, Greece
- Bangkok, Thailand
- Beijing, China
- Geneva, Switzerland
- Havana, Cuba
- Leiden, The Netherlands
- Vienna, Austria

Students interested in this program may enroll through the St. Louis home campus.

Tracks

In addition to the Global MA Degree, each cohort is organized in an informal 'track' that focuses their studies on a particular area of international relations. Courses and locations are themed to this track to allow for specialization within the program. Completing the degree requirements for a particular cohort of the GMA program will also result in earning the Certificate for that track. The Tracks are:

- Security Studies
- International Development
- Comparative and Regional Governance
- International Non-Governmental Organizations

Admission

Students who are interested in applying to this degree program should see the Admission Section of this catalog for general requirements.

Application deadline is March 1st, or until the class is filled, for enrollment in August of the same year.

Admission Requirements

- A completed Graduate Application for Admission, which can be completed and submitted online at http://webster.edu/apply.
  Important Note: When asked to choose a program on the online application, applicants should select “St. Louis campuses” > “St Louis Home campus” > “Graduate”, and then choose “Global International Relations.” Applicants do not have to submit another application specific to the GMAIR program.
- A $50 non-refundable application fee, which can be submitted online with the application for admission.
- An official transcript showing conferral of a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Students who completed their university education outside the US must have earned a comparable recognized bachelor's degree, as determined by Webster University. Students who expect to earn their bachelor's degree by July (the month prior to the start of the program) must submit an official transcript showing current academic progress. A final degree-conferred transcript must be submitted for full admission. Applicants who have completed graduate-level work should also request an official graduate transcript to be mailed to the Office of Admission.
- Students should have a minimum GPA of a 3.0 out of a 4.0 grading scale from their bachelor's degree. Students with below this GPA may be considered for admission if they show successful academic achievement in their junior and senior years. This is considered on a case-by-case basis.
- A current résumé showing education, work, and volunteer experience.
- Two letters of recommendation which speak to the applicant's motivation, character, and ability to be successful in an intensive, 11-month graduate program that requires significant travel. One letter should come from a former or current professor/instructor. Recommendation letters should be written in narrative form and no more than one page in length. Applicants may submit recommendation letters with their application packet.
- A phone interview or essay may be required.

In addition to the documents listed above, non-US applicants must submit an official English translation of their transcript and diploma, if applicable. Applicants whose primary language is not English must document their English language proficiency at the time of application. Refer to the Admission section of the catalog for details.

Advancement to Candidacy

Students are admitted to their graduate program upon completion of all admission requirements. Students are advanced to candidacy status after successfully completing 12 credit hours of graduate credit, with grades of B– or better. In the MBA program and other specialized programs, courses required as prerequisites to the program do not count toward the 12 credit hours required for advancement. A student who receives one F or two C's before advancement is dismissed. Students admitted on a conditional basis into the School of Business and Technology, the College of Arts & Sciences, or the School of Communications are limited to taking one course per term. Such students who earn one grade of C or below before they are advanced to candidacy will be dismissed without further right to appeal for reinstatement but may apply for readmission after one calendar year from the date of dismissal. Exceptions for international students may apply.
