-------------	----	------	----------	-------------	-------------	--------	---	------

This course is designed for special and regular educators, with or without computer experience. It will provide the participants with information on selection and adaptation of software and websites for students who are handicapped. While some assistive devices will be examined, the emphasis is on the utilization of available software and educational websites. Section one is focused on identifying needs of students with disabilities and using technology to enhance student learning. In section 2 students will develop new strategies to enhance student learning through technology. Students who have taken part 1 may enroll again for continued development in this area.

EDTC 5410 In-Service Topic: Using PDAs in Education

Sept. 26 & Oct. 10	01	1.00	Beckmann, M	9:00-4:00		S	WH 221	2	16 10.00

This course will discuss capabilities and terminology associated with handhelds, and how they can be used in the classroom, in the business world, and in everyday life. The class will examine how they are more than time and organizational managers, and how they support teaching and learning in the classroom. While some business applications will be discussed, the focus will be on educational applications. Students will search the Internet for free and/or low-cost educational utilities and game software programs and practice downloading and uploading. Other topics explored will include assessment methods, hot sync, beaming, copyright issues, curriculum content, various PDA, and ways and means to obtain handhelds.

Because teachers today are challenged to teach in diverse situations, deal with conflict and behavior problems, it is important that they are able to access and utilize techniques that deflect anger, redirect problem behaviors and maintain a sense of control. This course will provide logical consequences so children have an opportunity to make choices (within limits) and teachers are able to maintain control of their classroom. Teachers will learn to implement the two rules of Love and Logic, the delayed anticipatory consequence, two ways to neutralize childhood arguing, and how to create a Love and Logic classroom or school. Fee covers the cost of the textbook that will be provided.
