

Sports Communication (BA)

This program is offered by the School of Communications/ Communications and Journalism Department and is only available at the St. Louis home campus.

Program Description

The many manifestations of sports constitute a large and growing industry with an expanding need for professional communicators stretching across contexts such as family and youth sports, personal fitness, the amateur, high school, college and professional leagues that fill stadiums, newspaper columns, talk radio and television channels, video games, fantasy sports, sports betting and social media platforms. Sports communication explores the various aspects of the sports industry, focusing on communication strategies and media. Webster University's program provides a unique balance of theory and practice that spans the breadth of sports cultures. The sports communication curriculum also frames core and elective coursework in a way that builds a solid foundation with flexibility for the pursuit of individual interests within sports fields. The combination of a broadly framed curriculum and a senior capstone internship or thesis project equips students for a variety of careers as professional sports communicators.

Learning Outcomes

Successful graduates of this program will be able to:

- Define and engage a personal connection within professional and academic sports communication fields.
- Critically analyze the socio-political connections with the culture and industry of sports.
- Effectively communicate sports messaging across a variety of platforms, including writing, speaking and mediated communication.
